

- Introductions and meeting aims
- Presentations
  - Why paper categories are important for print characterisation David McDowell
  - Paper parameters that affect colour reproduction Danny Rich
  - Current paper categories and paper conformance
Jouni Martilla / Trish Wales / Anne-Sophie Gombart
  - Paper categories in publication gravure printing and vision for sheet and web offset printing K. M. Meinecke / Jan-Peter Homann
  - Current activities in other ISO groups Nils Pauler
  - IDEAlliance Print Predictability Paper Taskforce Trish Wales
  - Measurement issues addressed by ISO TC6 WG3 Byron Jordan
  - Paper properties: specifications, basic requirements for data generation and control of printing processes Fred. Dolezalek
- Discussion
- Summary of action items
- Plans for subsequent meeting
- Other business
- Adjourn

Problem statement

Users often need to know which ICC Profile is appropriate for a given printing condition.

The “printing condition” includes the printing parameters that determine the visual attributes of a print including the printing process, paper category, etc.

The proper use of ICC profiles becomes difficult when the user cannot determine whether the paper to be used is similar to the paper that was used when making the ICC Profile.